MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT – Michael Moore

On behalf of the EC, I'd like to wish one and all the best for the holiday period.

It has been a busy time already this year in the organization. I am going to try to briefly summarise the main developments.

Finances

Our financial position is currently secure with the influx of the various membership fees. I would like to thank everyone who has supported NSWIPP by either paying their fees early or making donations. Our Treasurer, Jan Williams, has been very active working-through the various possibilities whereby we may be able to reduce expenses. We have also been liaising with our bank to address our vulnerability to temporary cash-flow issues. Our Admin. Officer, Lyndall Rees, has been very involved in these processes as well. They both receive our sincere thanks.

CEAB

On the CEAB front, we held the working-lunch recently with members. Thank you to the many members that participated; it was very well-attended and there were many excellent ideas and suggestions arising from the meeting. The energy present was very encouraging. The ideas have been collated. The next step will involve reviewing them carefully to help plan the rest of the year and beyond. Many thanks to Dorothy Francis for being the prime organizer of all of this as well as Maria Kourt and Jan Williams.

I was also very encouraged to have a full-house at the March Scientific meeting for my presentation on my Dynamic Interpersonal Therapy training experience. I was grateful for my fellow trainees attending as well as the lively discussion that ensued. We don't plan to have an April meeting because of the impact of the holidays.

MAB

The MAB has been very busy, a good thing, with many applications for membership to be processed. Apart from our guest-list ex-trainees, we have members from other MAs applying as well as some highly-trained professionals from other institutes. Natasha Bonnin recently gave a wonderful presentation for membership. I want to highlight that the MAB and the EC are encountering new situations with some of these applications which is quite challenging in terms of our existing processes. Belinda Keatinge and her committee (Maria Kourt and Donna Jacobs) have been very diligently working on all of this in liaison with the EC and very much deserve our thanks.

Training

Our trainees are now on a break. The 2016 group are progressing well with their Infant Observations ably supported by Mary Cameron and Laurie Lovell-Simons. Thanks to Sheriff Rewais who has stepped-up to be their training Group Liaison Person. The 2014 group will begin, in May, their final Unit of the three-year seminar part of their training. The 2012 group continue seminars fortnightly whilst they continue their supervised case-work. It's pleasing to note that many new or returning supervisors have recently applied to be on the training list with trainees now having 23 options. The Supervisors' group itself continues to meet regularly and has become an excellent reflective space, coordinated by Laurie Lovell-Simons.

Ethics

In terms of Ethics and Values, thanks to Mary Cameron for continuing to coordinate the "pod" of EC members working on our processes. We have finally finished revising our Code of Ethics which will be available when edited. Thanks to Anne-Marie Swan and Dorothy Francis for also being involved in this particularly taxing form of work.

Premises

Jan and Anne-Marie continue to diligently manage the premises. The consulting room is doing quite well but there are still spaces for anyone you know who might be interested. We have excellent tenants and, for those that know the situation, the very noisy neighbour has been recently evicted, a sad situation that needed resolution.

PPAA

Julie Smee and myself were at the last PPAA Council meeting and were encouraged to find all the MAs now on the same page regarding forming the Confederation with the other psychoanalytic organizations. It is taking a long time but I think there will be many long-term benefits arising out of this venture – for patients as well as the practice of psychoanalytic work.

We have also successfully applied for PPAA financial assistance for one of our loss-making educational activities last year, an initiative for all MAs that was promoted by NSWIPP.

The PPAA Conference is approaching and in the last stages of organization. Regarding the Trainee Conference, there has been a good response that includes 6 NSWIPP trainees with each training group being represented.

Social activities

Last but certainly not least, Dorothy has continued to do a sterling job with our social activities. There was another very enjoyable visit to the Merton Hotel in March and there is a theatre visit being organized for April 30th as advertised. I think they really help in getting to know each other better and are enriching our professional home.

Warm regards to you all,

Michael
